CAPTAIN KIDD, THE PIRATE.

until the next day.

Some years before, while the war was still raging, there had been loud complaints in the city that even privateers of St. Malo's and Dunkirk caused less molestation to trade than another class of marauders. The English navy was fully employed in the Channel, in the Atlantic and in the Mediterranean. The Indian Ocean meanwhile swarmed with pirates, of whose rapacity and cruelty frightful stories were told. Many of these men, it was said, came from our North American colonies, and carried back to those colonies the spoils gained by crime. Adventurers who durst not show themselves in the Thames, found a ready market for their ill-gotten spices and stuffs at New York. Even the Puritans of New England, who in sanctimonious austerity surpassed even their brethren of Scotland, were accused of conniving at the wickedness which enabled them to enjoy abundantly and cheaply the produce of Indian looms and Chinese tea planta-

In 1695 Richard Coote, Earl of Bellamont, an Irish peer who sat in the English House of Commons, was appointed Governor of New York and Massachusetts. He was a man of eminently fair character, upright, courageous and independent. Though a decided whig, he had distinguished himself by bringing before the Parliament at Westminster some tyrannical acts done by whigs at Dublin, and particularly the execution, if it is not rather to be called the murder, of Gafney. Before Bellamont sailed for America, William spoke strongly to him about the freebooting which was the disgrace of the colonies. "I send you, my lord, to New York," he said, "because an honest and intrepid man is wanted to put these abuses down, and because I believe you to be such a man." Bellamont exerted himself to justify the high opinion which the king had formed of him. It was soon known at New York that the Governor who had just arrived from England was bent on the suppression of piracy, and some colonists in whom he placed great confidence suggested to him what they may perhaps have thought the best mode of atteining that object.

There was then in the settlement a veteran mariner named William Kidd. He had passed most of his life on the waves, had distinguished himself by his seamanship, had had opportunities of showing his valor in action with the French, and had retired on a competence. No man knew the Eastern Seas better. He was perfectly acquainted with all the haunts of the pirates who prowled between the Cape of Good Hepe and the Straits of Malacca; and he would undertake, if he were entacked with a single ship of thirty or forty guns, to clear the Indian Ocean of the whole race. The prigantines of the royers were not some single ship of the whole guns, to clear the Indian Ocean of the whole race. The prigantines of the prigantines of the royers were not some single ship of the whole guns, to clear the Indian Ocean of the whole sace. The prigantines of the royers were not some single ship of the whole is interesting, but we haven't time to describe white marble. The process of melting tallow is interesting, but we haven't time to describe its interesting, but we haven't time to describe it. There is generally about 73 per cent of one man-of-war which in the royal navy would hardly rank as a fourth rate, would easily deal with them all in succession, and the lawful spoils of the enemies of mankind would much more than defray the charges of the expedition. Bellamont was charmed with this plan, and recommended it to the king. The king referred it to the Admiralty raised difficulties, such as are perpetually raised difficulties, such as are perpetually raised by public beards when any deviation, whether for the better or for the worse, from the established course of proceeding is proposed. It then occurred to Bellamont that his favorite scheme might be carried into effect without any cost to the State. A few public-spirited men might be carried into effect which would soon make the Arabian Gulf and the Bay of Bengal secure highways for trade. He wrote to his friends in England imploring, remonstrating, complaining of their la.

White marble. The process of melting tallow is interesting, but we haven't time to describe it interesting, but we haven't time to describe it. There is generally about 73 per cent of the trade, of all wool. All pieces and each bale of about 73 yerd will be rejected; and each bale of about 73 yerd will be rejected; and each bale of about 73 yerd will be rejected; and each bale of lived with a well which promises finely. A little suet is found occasionally in thin deposits, and some fine specimes of whale's blubber and red precipitate ointment have been discovered here.

H. Fry is working a fine vein of fresh but for the filling wool, pure indigo blue, wool-dyed; and terr. This valuable mineral is found in great quantities in combination with lard rock, dripping stone, and rod hair granite; it is washed with a quartz crusher and in some inspect of the yard, and no piece shall be low with a wool and the filling wool, year day and in some guns, to clear the Indian Ocean of the whole

He wrote to his friends in England imploring, remonstrating, complaining of their lamentable want of public spirit. Six thousand pounds would be enough. That sum would be repaid, and repaid with large interest, from the sale of prizes, and an inestimable benefit would be conferred on the kingdom and on the world. His urgency succeeded. Shrewsbury and Romney contributed. Oxford, though, as first Lord of the Admiralty, he had been unwilling to send Kidd to the Indian Ocean with a king's ship, consented to subscribe a thousand pounds. Somers subscribed another thousand. A ship called the Adventure Galley was equipped in the port of London, and Kidd took the command. He carried with him, besides the ordinary letters of marque, a commission under the Great Seal empowering him to seize pirates, and to take them to some place where they might be dealt with according to law. Whatever right the king might have to the goods found in the possession of these malefactors, he granted, by letters patent, to the persons who had been at the expense of fitting out the expedition, reserving to himself only one-tenth part of the gains of the adventure, which was to be paid into the treasury. With the claim of merchants to have back the property of which they had been robbed, his Majesty, of course, did not interfere. He granted away, and could grant away, no rights but his own.

The press for sailors to man the royal navy was at that time so hot that Kidd could not obtain his full complement of hands in the Thames. He crossed the Atlantic, visited New York, and there found volunteers in abundance. At length, in February, 1697, he sailed from the Hudson with a crew of more than a hundred and fif y men, and in July reached the coast of Madagascar.

It is possible that Kidd may at first have meant to act in accordance with his instructions. But on the subject of piracy he held the notions which were then common in the North American colonies, and most of his erew were of the same mind. He found himself in a sen which was constantly traversed by rich and detenceless merchant ships, and he had to determine whether he would plunder these ships or protect them. The gain which might be made by plundering them was immense, and might be snatched without the dangers of a battle or the delays of a trial. The rewards of protecting the lawful trade were likely to be comparatively small. Such as they were, they would be got only by first fighting with the desperate ruffians who would rather be killed than taken, and by then instituting a proceeding and obtaining a judg-ment in the Court of Admiralty. The risk of being called to a severe reckoning might not fort at New York and Boston.

Kidd soon threw off the character of a lished friendly communications and exchanged of the officers' books, containing a general arms and ammunition with the most notorious of those revers, whom his commission authorized him to destroy, and made war on those peaceful traders whom he was sent to defend peaceful traders whom he was sent to defend. He began by robbing Mussulmans, and speed-ily proceeded from Mussulmans to Armenians, and from Armenians to Portuguese. The Adventure Galley took such quantities of cotton and silk, sugar and coffee, cinnamon and pep-per, that the very foremast men received from a hundred to two hundred pounds each, and that the captain's share of the spoil would have enabled him to live at home as an opulent gentleman. With the rapacity, Kidd had the cruelty of his odious calling. He burned houses, he massacred peasantry. His prison-ers were tied up and beaten with naked cutlasses in order to extort information about their concealed hoards. One of his crew, whom he had called a dog, was provoked into exclaiming, in an agony of remorse, "Yes, I am a dog, but it is you that have made me so."

Kidd, in a fury, struck the man dead. News then travelled very slowly from the Eastern Seas to England. But in August, 1698, it was known in England that the Adventure Galley, from which so much had been hoped, was the terror of the merchants of Surat and of the villagers of the coast of Malabar. It was thought probable that Kidd would carry his booty to some colony. Orders were therefore sent from Whitehall to the governors berths in the sloops of other pirates—returned to New York with the means, as he flattered himself, of making his peace and of living in splendor. He had fabricated a long romance, to which Bellamont, naturally unwilling to believe he had been duped, and had been the means of duping others, was at first disposed to listen with favor. But the truth soon came out. The governor did his duty firmly, and Kidd was placed in close confinement until orders arrived from the Admiralty that he should be sent to England .- From Macaulay's History of England, 5th vol.

Oil Upon Pigeon Creek-A Day's Journey-What we Saw and How we Saw It. [From the Monongahela Republican.]

The oil fever has taken such fresh hold upon so many of our friends up the Creek, and such wonderful stories are daily brought down to town, that, anxious to develop their truth, we ordered a horse and buggy, and started for the "theatre of excitement," on a prospecting tour early last Monday. Taking the Valley of Pigeon Creek, we first came to the old salt well at Vanvoorbis Mill. There we found Superintendent Caldwell and his assistants splashing up to the knees in a fine article of year. We understand that Mr. Vanvoorhis offers to lease them ten acres of ground to raise pumpkins on; the seed was brought from Cali-fornia by Hud Williams, who says they will grow large enough to hold five barrels. It is intended to grow these enormous pumpkinsbinding them with hickory poles and bracing them inside with oak saplings to keep them from warping or splitting.
At Blythe's we found William, Jim and John at work, and they were having first rate luck. Eight feet from the surface they struck a vein of first quality Cincinnati lard, worth at the mine 14 cents a pound. They have taken out 22 barrels a day for four weeks; are satisfied; don't want to sell.

At Colvin's we found all well, and times prosperous. Twenty-two feet under the ground they struck a vein of wintergreen hair oil, is interesting, but we haven't time to describe

They don't want to sell.

At Witherow's blacksmith shop was a great crowd collected to hear Josiah Taylor tell about the progress of the well. 'Si had come there to get his horse shod, and said at six feet he had tapped a vein of croton oil as big as a gimlet; at thirteen feet he encountered a layer of soft soap; at fourteen feet he struck a vein of castor oil, discharging a barrel an hour; at fourteen and a half feet he found a valuable nugget of Wilson's pills, a small pocket of oil of cinnamon, and a crevice that yielded ninety hog-heads of pure spermatceti; and then at eighty-two feet depth they struck lard, by which they knew that butter was near; after cutting through six feet of solid leaf lard, they were rewarded by striking butter.

We stopped for dinner at Newton Vanvoorhis', and he took us out to see a huge cave, on his farm, from the top of which hung, like icicles, millions of candles, six to the pound. Dave Fournier has struck a splendid hole of apples, and is bringing them up with a sand pump-fifteen bushels by the hour; he soon hopes to reach the bottom, where there are in-dientions of a first class article of crab cider. We then came down to Simon Wilson's and up the hill to the Baptist Church, and then down towards Hiram Rabe's. Here we saw a soap grease bog, and the hill so slippery with the little rivulets of oil cozing out, that a man might turn back his coat tails, sit down, and silde down the hill two miles and a half, without friction enough to make his pantaloons need a patch.

Stepped in to see our good old friend Wm Wickerham, who had struck a vein of fine caster oil, and the bobs were out on the farm hunting for a tree that bore ready made glass bottles, with the corks in and gilt edged labels

We came on down the river, past Mr. Kernan's-who hallowed to us as we passed his house, that he had discovered the hill to be solid rock candy, and wanted to know if we would like to lease half an acre for one million dollars. Told him we hadn't the change with us. So we jogged along home, and took down these imperfect notes from memory. We may have omitted some things-but not many.

DR JOHNSTON,

Member of the Royal College of Surgeons, London, graduate from one of the most eminent Colleges in the United States, and the greater part of whose life has been spent in the hospitals of London, Paris, Philadelphia and elsewhere, has effected some of the most astonishing cures that were ever known; many troubled with ringing in the head and ears when asleep; great nervousness, being alarmed at sudden sounds, bashfuiness with frequent blushing, attended sometimes with derangement of mind, were cured immediately.

TAKE PARTICULAR NOTICE.

Young Men and others who have injured themselves by a certain practice indulged in when alone—a habit frequently learned from evil companions, or at school, the effects of which are nightly felt even when asleep, and if not cured, renders marriage impossible, and destroys both mind and body, should apply nomediately.

These are some of the sad and melancholy effects produced by early habits of youth, viz. Weakness of the Back and Limbs, Pains in the Hend, Dimness of Sight, Loss of Muscular Power, Palpitation of the Heart, Dyspepsy, Nervous Irritability, Derangement of the Digestive Functions, General Debinty, Symptoms of Consumption, &c.

Gentlema: Your note of the 15th instant has been received, saying that you had heard that I had been benefited by the use of Wood's Hair Restorative, and requesting my certificate of the fact if I had no objection to give it.

I award it to you cheerfelly, because I think it due. My age is about 50 years; the color of my hair auburn, and inclined to curl. Some five or six years since it began to turn gray, and the scale on the crown of my head to lose its sensibility and landruff to form upon it. Each of these disagrees abilities increased with time, and about 4 months since a fourth was added to them, by hair falling off the top of my head and threatening to make me bald.

tles only, that not only was the falling off arrested, but the color was estored to the gray hairs and sensibility to the scalp and dandrull ceased to form on my head, very much to the gratification of my wife, at whose solicitation I was induced to try it. For this, among the many obligations I owe to her sex, I strongly recommend all nucleands who value the admiration of their wives to profit by my example, and use it if growing gray or getting bald.

Very respectfully, Ben. A. Lavender.

To Prof. O J. Ween: Dear Sir-Your "Hair Restorative" has done my hair so much good since I commenced the use of it, that I wish to make known to the public of its effects on the hair, which are great. A man or woman may benearly deprived of hair, and by a resort to your "Hair Restorative" the hair will return more beautiful than ever; at least this is my experience. Believe it all Yours truly,

P. S.—You can publish the above if you like By publishing in our Southern papers you will get more patronage South. I see several of your certificates in the Mobile Mercury, a strong Southern paper.
